The professor pretty much lectures about things that are not explicitly stated in the book, so one could receive an "A" on a test without ever opening the book and purely studying notes taken during class periods. I feel like lecture should not be about a lot of stuff not found in the book, but should elaborate on what is said in the book. However, I did enjoy this class and would recommend it to anyone who needs such a general education requirement b/c this class opened my eyes to American Government and politics.

Probably the best instructor I've had to date in my entire educational career. He seems like he knows absolutely everything about the subject matter, is entertaining and good at teaching. If he taught every class, I would apply for a political science major.

I really enjoy coming to this class. He is always willing to explain any information I did not understand after class.

My instructor is very organized and enthusiastic when he presents the topics in class. Overall my favorite class and teacher.

I've never liked government, but this has become one of my favorite classes. He presents material in a way that is both interesting and easy to understand.

He is very passionate about Pol Sci & very knowledgeable in this subject area. Overall the class was a good experience.

He is an excellent professor. He has a very deep understanding of the topics and presents it in a way that is very clear. He will sometimes tell you specifically what you need to write down, and is always willing to repeat something. Additionally, he is very approachable and takes his responsibility very seriously.

He is a nice guy in class, but his lectures tend to bore me. His extreme pronunciation of words is a pet peeve of mine, and it always gets on my nerves. He gave me an average grade on my last test and never stated why he took so many points off the 2 essays. I was pretty mad, especially since the annoying girl next to me got full credit. She's in honors, took AP classes, and claims to have a learning disability to get 10 extra minutes on tests. (explicit) Back to Yager, he's a good professor but, I'm not sure if I'd want to sit through more lectures over things that I don't have any interest in.

Great teacher

Great professor, very intelligent & smart would love to take another course with Dr. Yager. TAKE THIS CLASS

I have really enjoyed this class and would recommend him to anyone.

He is very knowledgeable professor. I enjoy his humor. This was my first class of my college career, and on that first day, I felt happy and confident as a freshman when I left his class.
